Governing Montana at the Grass Roots: Local Government Structure, Process and Politics

June, 2002, by Kenneth L. Weaver

The author examines the architecture, politics and needed reforms of Montana's local governments in the context of the American federal system and Montana state government. Included is a critical analysis of the Montana political system and a detailed description of how local politics shape the policy decisions of county and municipal officials. Other chapters detail local taxes and finances, functions of county and municipal governments and special districts, and self-government powers. Includes the U.S. and Montana Constitutions. "Coordination and Communication: A Look at Gallatin County Criminal Justice System Planning"

July, 2002, Eric Bryson

This is a research paper to explore the utilization of the Gallatin County Detention Center and the benefits of local justice planning and coordination. The research suggests alternatives to incarceration which might provide more cost-effective planning for detention center space requirements. (No charge)

Montana's Local Government Review

February 2001, by Kenneth L. Weaver and Judith A. Mathre

The work documents the recommendations and electoral outcomes of every county and municipal voter review study commission for all three cycles of Montana's local government review. Includes an analysis and comparison of local government forms, functions and powers as well as sample charters for each type of local government. ($20.00 plus $3.00 shipping and handling.)

Fiscal Impacts of Alternative Development Patterns: Broadwater & Gallatin Counties, MT

October, 1997, by Mark Haggerty

The paper details 2 county fiscal impact studies in SW Montana. In both studies the findings are clear: farmland and open space provide local governments with a surplus of revenue from property taxes and other revenue sources while residential development drains local government coffers. (No charge)
