NATIONAL ITEMS OF INTEREST

August 9th - International Day of the World's Indigenous Peoples, first adopted nearly 20 years ago by the United Nations General Assembly. Globally, 47% of all indigenous peoples in employment have no education, compared to 17% of their non-indigenous counterparts. This gap is even wider for women. More than 86% of indigenous peoples globally work in the informal economy, compared to 66% for their non-indigenous counterparts.

Indigenous Peoples are nearly three times as likely to be living in extreme poverty compared to their non-indigenous counterparts.

U.S. Access Board Celebrates 55th Anniversary of the Architectural Barriers Act [access-board.gov]-

On August 12, 1968, President Lyndon Johnson signed the Architectural Barriers Act (ABA) into law at his ranch in Stonewall, Texas, and remarked the next day “it is humane legislation—which had the unanimous support of both Houses of Congress. I am pleased and proud to sign it into law.” Tomorrow marks the 55th anniversary of the ABA, one of the earliest measures by Congress to address access to the built environment by requiring federal and federally leased facilities to be accessible for people with disabilities.

NET AND TAP UPDATES

NET Summit - The National Employment Team (NET) Summit will be held in Washington, D.C. on September 19th, and 20th. This includes a reception on the evening of September 19th honoring NET business and community partners as part of the 50 Year Celebration of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 which promoted equal access for individuals with disabilities in the hiring and of programs receiving Federal funding. The first day of the Summit will provide the opportunity for NET members and Training Center Directors from VR agencies across the country to meet and share information, ideas, strategies, approaches, and employment outcomes resulting from the Dual Customer approach. The focus will be on how we build a team within our organizations, across agencies and nationally to meet the needs of both the individuals served as well as business. It also enables the NET members and Training Center Directors to share strategies that are working at the local, state, and national level as well as challenges.

September 20th will be focused on listening to business customers - what is working, what is needed and how can we work together to meet their employment needs in the future, particularly in the changing world of work? This will include a focus on DEI&A when building the talent pipeline, hiring, support services and focus on retaining employees who have acquired a disability at any point in their employment lifecycle. We currently have 14 NET Business Customers confirmed, representing a wide range of industries.

EEOC Article on Reasonable Accommodation - As an employer, you can choose whether you want to designate a specific person to handle disability-related reasonable accommodation requests. If you do, train other supervisory employees to refer the request to that person when they receive an accommodation request. When you receive an accommodation request, if necessary, clarify what the employee needs to address a disability-related limitation, and what accommodation would best suit them.

The best way to respond to an accommodation request, especially if it's unclear what accommodation is needed and why, is to ask what is the specific work-related problem confronting the individual due to having a disability. The employee may be able to provide suggestions and information to help you decide what type of reasonable accommodation is best. If both of you are unsure of what accommodation is available, consult resources, such as Job Accommodation Network, free of charge, for ideas.
