

CHILD CARE LICENSING

OUT OF STATE BACKGROUND CHECK GUIDANCE – MARCH 14, 2023

You May Need Background Checks from Other States to Work in Child Care

If you have lived in another state or in multiple states in the last five years and want to work in a child care facility, you must complete background checks from each state you lived in during this timeframe. Out of state background checks include both a criminal records and child protective services check. The process for out of state background checks differs by state.

Montana is a Compact State and a NFF State

Montana ratified the National Crime Prevention and Privacy Compact Act of 1998 to facilitate electronic information sharing for noncriminal justice purposes, including employment, among state and federal governments. States who have ratified the Compact, like Montana, can join the National Fingerprint File (NFF), which is a database of fingerprints and other unique personal identification information related to an arrested or charged individual is maintained by the Federal Bureau of Investigations (FBI). An FBI fingerprint check will satisfy an interstate check of another state's criminal history record repository if the state where the child care staff member lived in participates in the NFF program.

Whether and How to Request Interstate Criminal Background Checks

If you lived in an NFF state, you do not need to worry about the out of state criminal history check. The Montana Child Care Licensing Program will receive criminal history information for this state with the FBI check. If you lived in a state that does not participate in the NFF program, there are various ways you will obtain your criminal background check for that state. The table below includes an alphabetical list of states, whether they are NFF states, who can initiate the check (Child Care Licensing or you, the applicant), and the process for getting a criminal background check for that state.

Child Abuse and Neglect Registries

Child abuse and neglect findings are often not associated with criminal background checks, which means a separate inquiry is required for to meet this federal requirement for child care employment.

Montana's Child Care Licensing Program Is Here to Help You

This can be confusing. We will help you navigate the process to complete your interstate background check. Child Care Licensing Program staff will support the individual applicant and the child care provider you are hoping to work.
